2 NEW APPLE PAINTINGS!

Recently took the family for our annual apple picking trip to a local orchard. Love painting apples. Shot a number of arrangements – wasn't happy with any of them. Laid the apples out on our kitchen table while I scanned the shots I had taken. Saw this arrangement out of the corner of my eye and was drawn to it. Liked how the light reflecting on the table created some nice blues, purples, and greens. Had fun painting this one. "Apple Harmony" (19.5" X 47", signed, numbered limited edition of 100 giclée on canvas).

Also available is "Apples." This painting (below right) is available as a signed, numbered limited edition of 15 giclée on German etching paper.

Hi everyone. Please stop out at the Penn State show if you have a chance. And, our list of collectors is growing – thank you. Over a half dozen new works are on the website since the last Update! Please visit SteveScheuringFineArt.com. And, sign up a friend to receive this newsletter as well.

"I LOVE A PARADE"

Was recently in New York City with some friends. Had some time to kill on Sunday afternoon and stumbled upon a parade - decided to hang out and watch it. Have always been an incessant people watcher - decided to take a bunch of shots of various characters in the parade that caught my eye. Was late afternoon, so the sunlight created these great blue shadows and hot highlights on the people. Since the NYC trip, have happened upon a few other parades at the Jersey Shore - have taken shots of characters at these parades as well. Created a series of colored pencil drawings called "Parade." Look for additions to this series over the next few months. Check these drawings out on the website - "Private Collection" select "Parade" under the "Series" drop-down menu.

UPCOMING EVENTS

Mark your calendars. Penn State is having an exhibit of alumni artwork called "Our OWN." I'll be exhibiting 3 pieces, one of which is "Pomegranate Flesh and Blood" below. This is my largest piece to date - 4' x 5'. Go to SteveScheuringFineArt.com, click on the "upcoming events" banner on the home page, and get directions and more information on the show.
